

Bored-games

A marketplace for buying and selling board games locally

A solution to a problem faced by gamers

Here are some questions that this app is designed to answer:

- What do I do with my old games when I no longer play them or have space for them?
- Where do I find games that I can't just buy in a store?
- How do I find what I want when Facebook, Amazon and eBay are flooded with listings for overpriced or scalped games???

The problem with the go-to sites

Problem

eBay and Amazon are often flooded with such ads for new and old games at astronomic prices.

And pages and pages of ads for each individual component from the games you are searching for.

Solution

Bored-games policy will default shown listings to those under a reasonable price threshold for used games. Users may choose to view listings over this price point.

The retail price of this game = AU $300
These ads were posted as soon as the game hit stores

Why use bored-games?

Sometimes you want to find and sell games locally

- It's cheaper
- It's faster
- You meet other gamers
- You will pay less for shipping and have less worry about your packages being lost

The app offers a fast and easy, organised way to find and sell games in your area

It discourages scalpers and rip-off prices!

Models

- Users – can buy and sell games
- Addresses – user addresses are stored (goal is to display pick-up/post address depending on selection)
- Games – Users can create listings for their games. Other users can buy games.

assumptions:

- 1) games have different sellers so a cart is not suitable.
- 2) a user can't buy their own game
- Purchases – a buyer can make many purchases, but a purchase is linked to just one buyer.

NOTE: this does need an option to go back. It's there... but the stripe button stops the other button displaying.

Still more work to do here...

Ideally:

- Add a receipt
- Maybe the date and seller

admin features

Other than the ability to edit and delete data and see everything, anything else is “extra”
